Trees and Garden Thrive In West Texas Desert

SIERRA, BLANCA, TEXAS.—D. Ortega has learned a horticultural secret sought by many tree lovers.

The Sierra Blanca man has raised cottonwood trees alongside cactus of the West Texas desert, a feat never performed in this arid region.

He flooded a small irrigated area near Sierra Blanca with rain water that he dammed through a series of contour listings and tanks. The trees grow in the water-filled tanks.

Ortega also has squash beans and chili peppers growing alongside mesquite and cactus.

Widow Routs Prowler With Her Rolling Pin

DETROIT.—After a struggle lasting half an hour, Mrs. Marion King, a 33-year-old widow, put to flight a drunken prowler who broke into her home at 5294 Phillip at 4 a. m.

Mrs. King, a victim of partial paralysis of the vocal chords, could not summon help and had to beat off her assailant with a rolling pin. She was treated at Grosse Pointe hospital for facial lacerations.

Rotation Grazing of Sheep Prevents Stomach Worms

Rotation grazing of sheep is the ideal preventive measure for stomach worms, believe animal pathologists of the University of Illinois college of agriculture.

Since preventive measures are based on breaking the life cycle of the worm, the young and uninfested animals should not be allowed to contact the manure from infested animals. Most serious effects are seen among lambs, and since growth must be made while the animals are young, the safest pastures should be made available to the lambs.

First symptoms are dullness, lack of thrift and often diarrhea. Later the skin and mucous membranes of the eye and mouth become pale as a result of the anemia caused by the blood-sucking habits of the parasite. Swellings may appear along the lower jaw, dewlap or brisket.

Stomach worms are tiny blood-sucking worms ¾ to 1¼ inches long and smaller than an ordinary pin. The adult worm attaches itself to the lining of the fourth stomach and feeds for awhile, then commonly shifts to a new point of attachment, leaving a bleeding wound resembling a pin-prick. The adult female lays many eggs which pass out with the droppings and contaminate the ground. The eggs hatch in from a few hours to several days, depending upon conditions of temperature and moisture. The larvae undergo further development until they reach a stage capable of infesting the host. In this stage they are very resistant to drying and low temperature.

When the grass is wet the larvae crawl up blades of grass to be swallowed by grazing sheep. Reaching the stomach, they mature in two to three weeks and in another week or two the females are producing eggs in large numbers.

'Bomb' Turns Out to Be A Package of Sermons

PHILADELPHIA. — The bomb squad was called out and 30 policemen detailed to keep back a crowd of hundreds last night after a man reported he had seen a suspicious looking character drop a package on the side entrance of the Baptist temple and drive away hurriedly.

The package, addressed to Dr. Daniel A. Poling, Temple pastor and world president of the Christian Endeavor, was thoroughly soaked in a bucket of oil.

Lieut. Albert Granitz of the bomb squad then gingerly opened it up—"a batch of Dr. Poling's sermons, which the printer's son had been late in delivering.

Baseball Fans to Get First Look at '41 Team

Appomattox fans will get their first look at the 1941 edition of the Lee Theatre baseball team Saturday afternoon at 3:15, when they meet Fork Union Military Academy on the Lee Theatre ball diamond. The admission prices for the game will be ten and twenty cents. It is expected that Earl Clay and Gordon Bragg will do the pitching, with Nathan Goff behind the bat. The rest of the local line-up will be: Nat Reasor at first, Nick Leftwich at second, Mickey Balls at short, Harry Ewers at third, Rick Hawkins, James St. Clair and Wally Wood in the outfield. Joe Cherman is out for the present with a bad shoulder.

Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, the Appomattox team will meet Shrader Independents at Shrader Field, and on the following Sunday the Shrader team will be at Appomattox at 3:15.

The management of the ball club merits the support of all the fans in town, even in these pre-season games, as it has taken the best part of three months to get the local team lined up and ready to play. Last year's Appomattox team being a pennant winner made local players very much in demand and it has been a hard job to keep some of them in the fold.... as many as four or five teams have made offers to some of the local favorites, in some cases offering them more in a financial way than the Appomattox team sponsor could afford to pay. But in each and every case the players are coming back because they like to play here in Appomattox, like the fans, the team members and the sponsors.

So in this 1941 season, let's make the boys feel at home by supporting the team.

Ciola Hurls No-hit Game for Maury

The final score was 1 to 0 in favor of Ciola's team. Manager John Curtis Caldwell, of the Appomattox Skyline team, was ill smiles when he heard of Ciola's perfect game, for Ciola is expected to be the ace of the Appomattox pitching staff during the approaching season.

Local Banks Pass Million in Total Assets

The total assets of the two banks at Appomattox have crossed the million dollar mark, according to financial statements published today.

The Bank of Appomattox and the Farmers National Bank in their April statements show total assets of $1,081,785.39 and combined deposits of $929,824.64.

These figures represent nice increases over the combined total of the first of the current year, and indicate that Appomattox is sharing in the general wave of prosperity now sweeping over the Old Dominion, attributed in part to the vast federal defense program spending. No defense industries are located in Appomattox, but many men from here are employed in defense projects in various parts of the state. In fact, there is a definite shortage of skilled labor here at the present time.

Appomattox is the banking headquarters for a large area in central Virginia, and the local institutions enjoy the confidence and patronage of the public for many surrounding counties as well as Appomattox.

The two statements will be found on Page Eight.
